PublicSchoolWORKS' New Website Provides Information and News About School Safety Requirements

Cincinnati, OH – August 26, 2013 – PublicSchoolWORKS.com, the signature safety solution for schools, has launched its new website that has been redesigned to provide an improved user experience. The new website includes enhanced navigation tools to access comprehensive school safety information, timely and relevant industry news, plus updated information and resources available from PublicSchoolWORKS.

Districts face excessive requirements from local, state and federal governments and oftentimes these requirements are the responsibility of only a few individuals at the district. PublicSchoolWORKS focuses on helping districts meet these requirements with services and tools that make the process automatic and seamless. The new site offers easy navigation for administrators to quickly find the information they need regarding the company's award-winning EmployeeSafe and StudentWatch Suites. Included are system details, case studies, articles, testimonials, videos and more that explain how these systems help districts improve school safety. PublicSchoolWORKS' social networking pages help create a sense of community for administrators faced with school safety burdens.

"Often times, you 'buy into' what vendors say, but then become disappointed because it is just all talk," said Robin Vick, finance officer at Tyrrell County Public Schools. "PublicSchoolWORKS really delivers what is sold."

PublicSchoolWORKS' multi-tiered "set it and forget it" systems have been developed to improve safety in schools, while reducing administrator time and effort.
